CUT PRICES by the only concern that ever voluntarily reduced prices, or in recent times originated a new idea in Windmill and Water Supply Goods. Everything the farmer sells is low. Who sells low to him? We have repeatedly refused to join, and have therefore defeated windmill combinations, and have, since '89, reduced the cost of wind power to ¼ what it was. Through gratitude, and because we are price makers, and are safest to deal with, and because we are the sole originators of all that is good in the modern steel windmill and tower, THE WORLD HAS GIVEN US MORE THAN HALF ITS WINDMILL BUSINESS. We believe in low prices, high grades and large sales. We make short hand with long power stroke pumps, with best seamless brass tube cylinders, lower than iron ones—a 2½ x 16 inch at $6.64. We prepay freight to 20 branch houses. Send now for beautifully illustrated catalogue of up-to-date ideas, as this appears but once. Our imitators may not have it in print our latest plans. CHILDREN'S EYES.

Did you ever look
In a child's clear eyes,
And feel the heaven that lay
In the innocent depth
Of the open soul,
As yet unsoiled by clay?

Oh! a holy thing
In a child's cle ar eyes,
And tender the hand should be
That touches the flower
Still wet with the dew
Of Heaven's own mystery.

It was said "Of Old"
That the demons that strove
For the doom of the race that fell,
If meeting the look
Of a child's pure eyes
Sank down to their native hell.

And the truth that hides
In the myth "Of Old"
Breaks as a star doth rise;
For the inmost heaven
Of innocence dwells
In the trust of a child's sweet eyes.

And this is the look
That the God-man loved,
When He gathered them close to His breast,
And, laying His hands
On their shining heads,
Pronounced them forever blest.

And the angels sent
From His kingdom above,
To watch, and to guard, and to stay,
Do always behold
The face divine
Of Him who spoke that day.

Are we worthy to share
The holy charge?
Let us fold our hands and pray,
Lest we merit the doom
Of those who cast
"Offense" in the little one's way.

CAPTAIN NABB.

BY JAMES BUCKHAM.

Great was the seafaring fame of Capt. Nabb, in the little village back among the Connecticut hills, from which he had first gone forth with his bundle slung on a stick. Since that day, 30 years past, when he had set forth to seek his fortune, the captain had been four times around the world, twice in his own ship, and had visited almost every known port in civilized and uncivilized countries; had commanded the largest merchantman in the West India trade, and had won the reputation of first rank among expert and daring navigators.

What wonder, then, that all Topsham was agog when the captain, one fine evening in June, lurched out of the rocking old stage and announced in hearty tones to his former townsfolk—the majority of whom were assembled at "the store"—that he had come home for a two months' vacation. It certainly seemed like an act of unparalelled condescension on the part of the great navigator, and Topsham felt duly honored.

It did not take the boys of the village long to discover that Capt. Nabb was a jolly soul, and particularly open to advances from them; and soon, in spite of the great man's awful fame, they proceeded to take possession of him, till it was rarely that the old man's sturdy figure cruised about the village without being attended by a fleet of his boyish admirers, hanging to him as closely as native canoes under the bows of a South sea trader.

Thus it naturally came to pass that, when Benny Boardman and his younger brother, Carl, became the owners of a small sailboat on Duck pond, the first thing that occurred to them was to ask Capt. Nabb to accompany them on their maiden cruise. The old seaman consented, after a glance at the four points of the compass, and an inquiring sniff of the fresh inland air. But first, he said, he must go for his sou'wester, and his oilcloth suit, and certain other things. There was no telling what sort of weather might blow up before night.

At the appointed time Capt. Nabb came down to the little wharf at the head of the pond. He carried in his arms his waterproof garments, a large, five-jointed spy-glass, a compass as big as the palms of your two hands, a speaking-trumpet and a sextant. "I never go to sea without my tools, boys," he said, "even though it be in a washtub." He stepped down into the little catboat, deposited his burden and himself in the stern, and proceeded to instruct the boys in the art of making sail. After considerable bungling, Ben and Carl got up their mainsail, the captain cast off, and away they skimmed before a fresh breeze down the bay.

It wasn't much of a sheet of water they were cruising on, to be sure. The pond was about a mile long and half as wide, perhaps; very irregular in shape, with many little bays and sloughs, where the water set back among wild oats and swamp-grass. Near one end a large brook entered, after devious windings through the marsh, and at the other end a brook, as like the feeder as the next pea in a pod, formed the outlet of the pond. It would be hard to say which was which (for neither brook had any perceptible current), unless you observed the surrounding shores. On the whole, Duck Pond was not pretty; but it was useful, for it was full of pickerel and bass, and in the shooting season the marshes teemed with wild fowl and plover.

Capt. Nabb showed the boys how to tack and jibe, how to come up into the wind, how to reef and cast anchor, how to handle the helm and stow ropes, tie a sailor's knot, ballast the boat, and steer when meeting, passing or crossing the bows of another craft. He had the whole nautical code at his tongue's end, and the practice of seamanship in his finger-tips; and if the boys did not learn all he had to teach them, it was because the limitations of a catboat made it impossible.

"Why! bless my eyes!" exclaimed the captain, suddenly, as he finished an exciting tale about a walrus hunt among the icebergs of the North sea. "What's become of the sun?"

"It's set," replied Benny Boardman. "I saw it go down behind the pine hill, half an hour ago."

"Are you sure?" cried Capt. Nabb, leveling his five-jointed telescope toward the pine hill. "It can't be more than four o'clock."

"But I heard the whistle blow for six, long ago," ventured little Carl.

"Bless me! the boys are right!" exclaimed the old navigator, as he pulled out a huge silver watch, almost as large as a saucepan. "We must be getting under way for home at once. Now then—all ready to go about!"

The captain threw over his helm, and the little boat came slowly up into the light breeze, which had been steadily falling for an hour. It was almost a minute before the lazily-filling sail drew on the opposite tack. Capt. Nabb looked anxiously to windward. "Confound your land breezes!" he said, somewhat testily. "I believe we are going to have a dead calm."

And so it proved. In ten minutes more the little sailboat lay becalmed in the center of the pond. Slowly the twilight gathered, veiling the distant hills, and obscuring the outlines of the marshy shores. The old seaman fumed and fretted. He placed his big compass on the thwart in front of him, and fixed the homeward course by the needle as well as he could, after studying various fading landmarks with his glass. His lips were shut very tightly, lest any strong nautical language should escape them in the presence of Benny and Carl. But finally, as darkness closed around, the necessity for utterance so grew upon the old man that he seized his speaking-trumpet, and, in tones that made the shores reverberate, roared out:

"Topsham, ahoy! a-h-o-y!"

The boys listened in awed silence, but there was no reply to the stentorian hail, though thrice and four times repeated. But as if the echoes, circling the pond, had stirred some sluggish current of air and set it flowing again, a slight breeze began to stir the sail of the Mermaid, and she moved slowly forward in the darkness.

Capt. Nabb's face beamed with delight, and, tiller in hand, he leaned over the big compass and sailed away on starboard tack. "Give us a song, my hearties!" he cried, gayly, to Benny and Carl. Then, straightening himself up, he roared a stanza of a rollicking sea ballad, beginning:

Oh, Nancy was a sailor's lass,
As fair a lass as e'er I knew!

The captain was about to start up the chorus, when there came a swishing sound across the bow of the Mermaid.

"Look out, captain! We are running ashore!" cried Benny. "See! we are in the swamp-grass."

"Shiver my timbers!" shouted Capt. Nabb, in amazement. He jibed the Mermaid, and she rushed through the shallow water and the bending marsh-grass till finally she brought up on a muddy spit and stuck fast, while all the ballast, including the captain, the two deck hands, and the nautical instruments, pitched forward and brought up in a heap in the bow.

"Well, well!" panted Captain Nabb, as he finally struggled up on a thwart. "That's the first time I ever lost my reckoning."

"And it's the first time I ever lost a tooth!" sputtered Benny, as he leaned over the side of the boat.

"Dear me! That's too bad!" said the captain. "I don't see how it happened. According to the compass we should be in clear water, steering a straight course for the wharf."

"But, captain, you must remember that the pond is crooked," suggested Benny.

"Bless me! that's a fact!" cried the old tar. "I never thought of it."

They all got out into the shallow water, and after much pushing and hauling, floated the Mermaid again. Then Capt. Nabb took an observation of the stars, replaced his compass on the thwart, and ventured upon a new course. This at length brought them into one of the two large brooks, but which one they could not tell, as the water was dead, and it was impossible in the darkness to tell anything of the surrounding country.

Then the great navigator, who had been around the world, scratched his head, and made another calculation; the result of which was that, after sailing, as it seemed, for hours, these night explorers found themselves in the sluggish mouth of the other brook, quite as uncertain as before which end of the pond they had arrived at.

Thereupon Capt. Nabb seized his speaking trumpet and bellowed again, and this time he sent forth a less definite and confident hail:

"On shore! Ahoy!"

"Ahoy yourself! Don't deef-en a fellow. What do you want?" came a gruff reply out of the darkness, not 50 yards away.

Capt. Nabb lowered his trumpet rather sheepishly. "We have lost our reckoning, friend," he said, addressing his remarks to the unknown in the darkness. "Will you kindly give us our bearings?"

"You're just ten rods up Dead creek," replied the hoarse voice of the unknown, "and I wisht you'd back out and quit scaring the pouts."

"Dead creek! Why, that's 'way at the further end of the pond!" exclaimed Benny. "It's a mile from here to the wharf, and I don't believe you can ever sail us there in the world, captain."

"Right you are, youngster!" cried the navigator, heartily, though it was a sore blow to his nautical pride.

"Can't ye find your way home?" came the voice out of the darkness.

"No!" replied the globe-girdler and the two boys, in mournful chorus.

"I'll come aboard and sail ye there for 75 cents." The proposition was mercenary but practical, and had a welcome ring of assurance in it.

Capt. Nabb hesitated, looked up at the stars, then at the shivering boys. "Lay aboard!" he said, shortly.

Half an hour later Benny and Carl were crawling gratefully into bed, and Capt. Nabb was packing his big black chest, moved by a sudden, inextinguishable longing for the open sea.—Outlook.

Camels in Spain.

Camels have domesticated themselves in southern Spain—the only spot in Europe where they may be seen in a wild state. Some 40 years ago a herd was brought over from Africa, and as no use could be made of the creatures they were turned loose to shift for themselves. The camels flourished and increased, and now seem quite at home in the district between Seville and Cordova.

The Field of Lies.

The Field of Lies was the battle fought by Louis the Good-Natured against his three sons. The unfortunate monarch was deserted by his own army: he was twice shut up in a cloister, twice compelled to do public penance, and twice released to pacify the quarrels of his family.

TIME'S COMPENSATION.

The Fellow That Played the Mouth Organ Triumphed at Last.

"Some fellow tells us in poetry," said the judge while they were enjoying themselves in the tent after a hard day's fishing, "how fortune plies her sports when she begins to practice them." This trip recalls an illustration from real life.

"I fished in this same lake 30 years ago. I'd tell you something about my luck that summer, but all men are put down as liars when they venture on fishing experiences. A party of us put up at an old farmhouse, and in the number were half a dozen girls, full of life and mischief. We kept the fun going with a rush, and one of our chief sources of amusement was a shock-headed young fellow living in this neighborhood.

"I can see that chap yet playing a mouth organ. He threw his body around promiscuously, tossed his head in every direction and blew till his face looked as would that of the man in the moon if painted red. He also performed on the accordion and made as much work of it as pitching hay. When he sung of the bonnie lasses of Scotland he was innocently persistent in calling them the 'boney' lasses. He roared about the days of 'Old Long Sime,' and knocked harmony into smithereens as he rendered 'Off on a Still at Night.'

"The girls made a fool of him. They praised his singing and playing until he imagined himself a musical prodigy, and his hat was sizes too small for him. When he took them out rowing they would talk so admiringly of his strength that he almost pulled himself in two. He danced all over the girls' feet and wrenched them unmercifully in hustling them through the figures; but they were always talking of how divinely he danced. I joined making game of him, but I can recall now that he and I did a good deal of 'swapping,' for which he seemed to have a mania, and that in return for my watch, a diamond scarf pin and a fancy fishing tackle I had a lot of old traps and calamities that were not worth carrying back to civilization.

"The young fellow proposed to the gayest girl in the crowd, and when she laughed him from her presence without one word of regret or sympathy he seemed to realize the situation, and left with a look that years of his old life would never have produced. He's now the multi-millionaire speculator that holds a big mortgage on the magnificent home of the Widow Dainty. She is the woman that made sport of his love 30 years ago."—N. Y. Telegram.

IN GOOD FORM.

Points Pertaining to Physical Perfection.

Why not be in good form? Not in the conventional sense of doing the right thing in the right way, but in the physical sense. It is far more largely a matter of habit and training than is generally supposed. Unless there is actual physical deformity any intelligent person may cultivate such a bearing, walk and carriage as shall make every movement graceful. There is beauty of form and bearing as well as of feature and of countenance, and certainly the beauty of figure and movement is not less important than the other. Besides, as has been very sensibly said, "an erect bodily attitude is of greater importance to health than many persons imagine. Crooked positions, maintained for any length of time, are always injurious, whether in a sitting, standing, or lying position, whether sleeping or waking. To sit with the body leaning forward on the stomach or to one side, with the heels elevated on a level with the hands, it is not only bad taste, but very detrimental to good health. It cramps the stomach, presses the vital organs, interrupts free motion of the chest, and enfeebles the functions of various organs, and, in fact, unbalances the entire muscular system. Many persons are made round shouldered or humpbacked by sleeping upon very high pillows. When anyone finds it much easier to sit, stand or sleep in a crooked position instead of a straight one, rest assured that the muscular system has been abused, and at once take steps toward rectifying the damage already done."—Good Housekeeping.

News of Fashion.

Many of the autumn silks have a faint mottled ground figured with small brilliant Persian designs.

The silk waist, as a set-off and complement of a separate skirt of some handsome description, has taken another lease of life.

Most of the new tucked evening gowns of gauzy material have rows of handsome lace insertion between, and this forms an exceedingly pretty addition.

With many of the new velvet boleros and jacket-bodices will be worn lovely broad collars of Venice point, point appliqué, or of very sheer batiste embroidered in quaint and beautiful Flemish or renaissance patterns.

Fawn colors, silver grays, and soft nun's grays, with a touch of cream in them, appear among the fall sample lists of some of the most beautiful taffetas, liberty satins, lustrous corded silks, mohairs, alpacas and sheer silk-warp wools.—Chicago Record.

Autumn Millinery.

White and black combinations in millinery for dressy wear will be very prevalent this autumn; black and white laces, aigrettes, ostrich tips, black velvet ribbon overlaid with white lace insertion, black and white satin-striped ribbon, black velvet loops lined with white satin, and tiny evening toques of soft velvety white French felt garnished with black and white tulle, doves' wings, white birds with black wing-tips, and breast plumage, white satin bows, and white velvet poppies with black hearts.—N. AGAINST HIS WILL.

I.

The editor was disgusted and no wonder!

It was the dull season and the Scrutator was compelled to resort to much padding in order to fill the daily measure expected by its subscribers; it was even obliged to print copious extracts from other publications—a thing only to be done as a last resource by any paper of spirit! Yet at this particular time a celebrity, a real celebrity, came for a few days' stay to Oakhampton, and refused to be interviewed!

Why he came was a mystery, but that he had come was a fact, though from the editor's point of view he might just as well have stayed away. The celebrity's unobliging disposition on the subject of interviewing had preceded him; he was perhaps the only man of note in two continents who had not submitted to the ordeal. In moments of self-depreciation he was won to say that that was his greatest claim to distinction; but even this reputation had not daunted the hopes of our editor, who felt convinced that the surliest disinclination must give way before the charm and tact of the most valuable member of the Scrutator's staff. But the tact, the charm, had no opportunity of producing their usual effect; they might as well have been nonexistent. Celebrity, from the privacy of a hotel sitting-room, sent down a curt message of absolute refusal.

No wonder, then, as we said before, the editor was disgusted.

As he meditated on the provokingness of things in general and of the celebrity in particular, he found his thoughts running into such eloquent and well-rounded periods that he instinctively drew pen and paper toward him and wrote an editorial, which, if the celebrity had read it, would have made him feel very small indeed.

The article clearly proved that what the Public demanded it must have (for the public spelt with a capital P was as sacred to the editor as Humanity (spelt with a capital H) is to the followers of Auguste Comte. The individual as such exists not for his own sake, but for the sake of the Public in one case, or of Humanity in the other. The article further demonstrated that celebrities would not exist without a Public. (How could anyone become celebrated on a desert island, for instance?) If, then, it is to the Public that the celebrity owes his being, and the Public manifests a curiosity as to the opinions on things in general of any celebrity in particular, the Public has a right to know those opinions, and how could it know them better than through the columns of the Scrutator?

But our editor was not always in this displeased frame of mind. As a rule he was the most genial of men, and such he looked that same evening as he sat smoking his cigar on the gallery of a handsome house in Clarence avenue. His companion was his niece, a young girl with a pretty face and figure, and a mischievous look in her dark eyes which was particularly fascinating. She was discoursing about the dearest wish of her heart—that she should become a regular writer for the Scrutator.

But her uncle pooh-poohed the idea; she was too young, too inexperienced, too pretty, and at any rate it was impossible to become a writer by simply talking about it. "Why," continued he, "do you not write something and show me what you can do?"

"I have written several stories, as you know, but you won't look at them," replied the girl.

"Oh, no, the Scrutator does not want stories. Write me an article on some subject which will interest the public."

"But, what subjects do interest the public, uncle, dear? You only laugh at me if I suggest one."

"Oh, come now—you can't expect a poor editor to suggest subjects for you as well as read your articles. Make your own choice. The world is all before you where to choose."

"That's just what bewilders me; it is so hard to choose. If only I had something definite to go upon—or if—(coaxingly)—you would just look at one of my stories."

But the editor vouchsafed no reply to this, so his niece went on: "My firm conviction is that I should make a splendid interviewer. I should enjoy it, too. At college I could always get the girls to tell me anything I wanted to know."

The editor laughed.

"Why not become a detective at once?" said he.

"I wish I could," sighed the girl. But her uncle was not attending; he was looking at a cyclist who was spinning rapidly past the house.

"That's the man!" he exclaimed, "that's Camberton!"

"Oh, that man!"—for Kittie knew all about the editor's grievance with the celebrity—"he passes here every day. I have met him several times lately when I have been out on my morning ride. I wondered who he was."

"Well, I must go now," said her uncle, as he glanced at his watch. "Good night, child," and then, as an afterthought: "Tell you what, Kittie, if you can manage to interview Camberton I'll do anything you like," and with a laugh as though he had made a tremendous joke, the editor departed, leaving Kittie to her thoughts, which, as the poet says of the thoughts of youth, were "long, long thoughts."

II.

Early next morning two cyclists might have been seen wheeling up Clarence avenue. The one in front was a man, big and distinguished-looking—a man whom to see was to remember. The second cyclist was a young girl, who kept always at about the same distance from the man in front.

After awhile the man turned from the main avenue into a road which led into the country. The girl followed, and when the few houses in the road were passed she began to scorch and was soon ahead of the man, who noticed with admiration the erect way in which she sat in spite of the speed at which she was going. She wore a dark skirt and pale pink blouse, which made a pretty bit of color in the landscape, the man thought, as his eyes traveled from her to the far blue distance.

When his gaze sought the fair cyclist again he found that she was seated on the road, her wheel lying beside her. The man wondered how she had managed to fall, for the road was good, and she had seemed to be perfect mistress of her bicycle. No one else was in sight, so he must perforce dismount and go to her assistance. "I hope you are not much hurt," he said, with grave solicitude.

"Oh, I hope not," said the girl, with a smile, which she managed to make pathetic. "I feel very much shaken, and I think I have strained my ankle a little, but if I rest for a few minutes I shall be all right."

So with the man's assistance she got up and seated herself on a tree trunk lying near.

"May I," he asked, courteously, "go to your home and send you some assistance?"

"Oh, dear no," in a tone of alarm, "it would frighten them to death. I am not much hurt. If you could kindly wait a few minutes and then help me to mount—I don't think I could mount alone. I feel nervous."

"I am at your service," replied her companion; "your wheel, at any rate, is none the worse."

For, ardent cyclist that he was, if his first look had been for the rider, his second had been for the wheel.

"So much the better, but see how I have torn my skirt. I must mend it, or perhaps it would catch and throw me again."

So saying, she drew from her pocket a dainty little case, from which she produced thimble, needle and thread, and then began sewing her torn skirt. The man watched her nimble fingers with admiration. She was a graceful little person and looked very demure as she sat with bent head, her mischievous eyes fixed on her work.

"I love cycling!" she exclaimed—"don't you?"

The man confessed that he did, and she displayed such interest in what he said that he told her the story of a cycling trip he had taken last summer, and from that, encouraged by her gentle questioning, he spoke of many things, and the girl listened intently. But at last she felt that she could remember no more, and that made her realize that she was equal to her return trip, so she prettily explained that she felt quite recovered from her fall and asked her companion to be good enough to help her to mount. He acquiesced almost reluctantly, for it had been a pleasant half hour to him.

She paused a minute. "I don't know how to thank you for what you have done for me." She cast her eyes down, for they were full of laughter. She was wondering what the editor would say.

"You make too much of it," he said, for how could he know what was in her mind? "I am glad I was able to be of any assistance to you. It was a fortunate thing that I happened to be so close behind."

She did not think it necessary to tell him that but for that she would not have fallen!

"I am sorry to say that I am leaving the city this evening," the man went on, "or I would venture to ask permission to call on you."

"You are leaving this evening? I am sorry, too."

But the dimples in her face belied her words.

A courtly bow, a word of adieu and she was off like a bird. He watched her out of sight, and as he mounted his own wheel it vaguely occurred to him that from a strained ankle, however slight, she had recovered very completely.

Her little feet did swift work with the pedals, it is true, but when she reached home her pen traveled almost more swiftly over sheet after sheet of paper, as she wrote with marvelous correctness the opinions and remarks of the man who had never been interviewed.

After all, he found himself unable to leave the city that evening, but the first train next morning carried him away. The boys were calling the papers on the station platform, and so a copy of the Scrutator found its way into his valise.

When he looked at it his own name caught his eye. In lettering so big that it is usually reserved for a presidential election or for the chances of a war with Great Britain, to his own vast amazement he saw:

"INTERVIEWED AT LAST.
Mr. Chamberton's Opinions on Cycling.
What He Thinks of Our City.

As he read, his look of exasperation gave place to a smile, for he was one of those fortunate ones who can enjoy a joke at their own expense, till finally he burst into a laugh so hearty that his fellow passengers wished they could enjoy the joke with him.

"The little jade," he muttered; "if ever I trust a woman again, I'll be—"

But the expression was so utterly unlike what one would expect from a celebrity that it had better remain unrecorded.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Czar Doesn't Pay for Coronation.

The impression that the expenditure in connection with the coronation at Moscow was paid by the czar out of his own pocket is erroneous. Every rouble in the imperial treasury is supposed to be at the absolute disposal of the czar and he draws upon the treasury at discretion. In addition, he is the owner of large estates in different parts of Russia and is well able to pay all the bills incurred during the coronation ceremonies—if he felt so inclined.—N. Y. World.

Cassava Plant.

The cultivation of the cassava plant has been begun in the United States. It is a shrub from six to eight feet tall, and bears large tubers underground. These are first heated to drive off the poisonous hydrocyanic acid, and they are then made into tapioca and dextrine. It is said that the latter can be more easily manufactured from this plant than from corn.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

ANIMAL WAIFS.

A horse died at North Andover, Mass., the other day, in whose stomach was found over a pound of nails.

Barnum's trick horses are fairly beaten by a team of old work horses in Wesley, Me., that the driver left standing in the field for a moment, hitched to a mower. In his absence they cut two neat swaths completely around the field, without missing a spear of grass, turning the corners accurately.

All efforts to trace the capercalzie and black game imported in Aroostook, Me., from old Sweden last spring have proved fruitless. Now and then comes a rumor that they have been seen or heard. They have doubtless retreated to the deep Canadian pine forests, and the benefits of their importation will be reaped in future years.

Few hunters have returned from the woods with more satisfaction than that felt by Miss Jennie Eliot, of South Sebec, Me., who recently saw two deer grazing in her father's mowing field, and succeeded in getting an excellent photographic snap shot at them. In the picture one of the deer is in the attitude of leaping, all four of its legs being off the ground.

A swordfish strayed away from home and friends a few days ago and lost his life while exploring the old basin inside of the old breakwater at Block Island, R. I. When his presence became known half a dozen men, one with a harpoon, went on the breakwater, and, when the fish was near the instrument was thrown, with the desired result. It is said that this is the first fish of the kind ever known to have been seen in the basin.

WRITERS OF VERSE AND PROSE.

Dr. Jameson is said to be occupying his time in prison in compiling an account of his connection with the Transvaal raid.

Another legacy of 100,000 francs has been left to the French academy, the income of which must be awarded to authors of moral works.

Traine left a lot of manuscript poetry, now in the possession of M. de Heredia, of the French academy, who, in justice to the historian, will allow no one to read it.

The prize of $100 for the best poem to be read at the opening of the centennial exposition of Tennessee, has been awarded to Mrs. Virginia Fraser Boyle, of Memphis.

In fear, apparently, that his fame will soon pass away, some of Robert Louis Stevenson's admirers are already urging that his statue be set up in Edinburgh.

Henri Rochefort's autobiography has just been completed in five volumes in French. The author is now at work on the two-volume English edition, specially edited by him and translated for Anglo-Saxon readers.

The account by Dr. Donaldson Smith, the American traveler, of his recent explorations in Africa, will bear the title "Through Unknown African Countries," and will be profusely illustrated from the author's own photographs.

STYLES IN HATS AND GOWNS.

A new waist has the yoke made of narrow, close puffing. The lower portion of the waist has the effect of the material being wound around the waist, the end being fastened with rosette bows on one side of the front.

The sailor hat seems never to go out of style. It has been remarked, however, that many sailor hats are used for bicycle and yachting purposes. Sailor hats are also profusely trimmed with ribbons and flowers and worn on dressy occasions.

Poke bonnets are assuredly coming into fashion and some of the autumn styles are extravagantly pretty. They are made of rough straw in dark colors, and are trimmed with satin ribbon and plumes after the manner of those seen in old pictures.

A novelty collar is of satin in two colors. The outside is dark and elaborately braided; the inside is of some light, becoming tint. A very full ruffle is box-plaited and stands up about the throat, the inside being of satin, the outside covered with braiding.

A stylish waist has the collar and very short jacket fronts made of close braiding. These fronts extend only to the sleeves and under-arm seams. The sleeves are close fitting, with row upon row of braiding. Over the close sleeves are deep loops of the material, which is gathered in at the tops of the shoulders.

SCIENTIFIC GLEANINGS.

Argon has at last been combined with water by Prof. Villard, of the Paris Ecole Normale. It requires a pressure of 200 atmospheres to do so.

A method of nickeling wood has been devised by the German chemist Langbein, the wood being covered by a thin coating of metal by either dry or wet process.

Prof. Norton, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has succeeded in getting Roentgen photographs of the liver, heart and lungs sufficiently plain to admit of medical examination.

A French chemist has made a blue soap which will render unnecessary the bluing in the laundry. In ordinary soap he incorporates a solution of anilin green in strong acetic acid. The alkali of the soap converts the green into blue.

FROM GAY PARIS.

Part of the Boulevard de Vaugirard in Paris has been rechristened Boulevard Pasteur.

Next year is the centennial of the stove-pipe hat, which first came into common use in Paris in 1797.

Horseless carriages are admitted to all the privileges of the ordinary Paris fiacre by a recent decision of the prefect of the Seine.

Paris swells are wearing the Mores hat this fall. It is a broad-brimmed gray felt, such as the marquis wore when he was killed by the Tuaregs.

Leprosy in Iceland.

There are lepers in Iceland—about 200 in all. Now an enthusiastic priest has determined to follow heroic Father Damien's example—to devote himself wholly to the care of the unfortunates. Already he has raised 10,000 francs and is promised enough more to assure the early erection of a comfortable hospital.

GOLD had depreciated its value prior to 1873, as compared with silver, and in that year Sherman demonetised silver to appreciate gold. Sherman is a pretty rich man.

IT is charged that the contention for free coinage is a scheme to bring on an era of speculation in gold. If this were true the gold men would be advocating free silver.

REPEAT as often as you choose without fear of contradiction, the increase in the output of silver did not reduce its commercial ratio to the present standard nor depreciate it as money.

IT is denied by Republicans that free coinage laws can make silver dollars more generally equal to gold in value, The best English authority says that when the great Australian gold discoveries were made it was proposed to adopt silver and demonetize gold, which is a clear recognition of the force of law in monetary questions."

JOSEPH H. MANLEY, who deserted Thomas B. Reed and jumped into the McKinley wagon just before the St. Louis convention, "claims" 254 votes for the Canton man in the electoral college. Meanwhile McKinley stays at home while Bryan goes to the people expounding to them the truth on the financial question and making votes for silver.

BRYAN tells the people something else than quality is required in money. Quantity is equally as important, quantity sufficient for the need of the country. Anyone can see that if a few men have all the money it does not make any difference to the many how good it is; they will not benefit any by its existence. Bryan argues for quality and quantity. Free silver will provide both.

MARK HANNA says 75 per cent. of the business of the country is done with paper, checks, drafts, etc.; ergo, there is less need for metalic money than formerly. It is because the gold sharks have taken the metallic money away from the people that the latter find so much difficulty in carrying out their dealings. Restore silver to its rightful place in the nation's coinage and there will be less paper used and the whole people will have more money.

THE law of 1890 says the treasurer shall redeem the treasury notes of that issue "in the gold or silver coin at his discretion, it being the established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals on a parity. That means that the parity can be maintained only by the payment of gold or silver as the treasurer may see fit and not what the creditor may require. The parity between the two metals can be destroyed in a day by demand for one coin and rejection of another by creditors. The treasury paid out gold for these notes and therefore turned its back upon the maintenance of the parity.

"WHY should Bryan not be elected?" asks the New York Journal. "There is on his side every element that justly gives popularity to a candidate. He is opposed by all the powers that are permanently hostile to the interests of the masses of the American people. The big manufacturing trusts are against him. So are the money syndicates, which force bond issues in time of peace and make millions out of the operation. So are all the predatory millionaires who find profit in keeping their grip on the government. So is every interest which objects to the Democratic doctrine that in this republic there should be equal rights for all and priviledges for none. Bryan is in the vigor of life, able, eloquent, sincere, and as courageous a man as ever invited the enmity of the few who consider the many their rightful prey. He is the champion of the masses.

Why should the masses prefer Major McKinley to Mr. Bryan?

Backing McKinley are Carnegie, Rockefeller, Pierpont Morgan, C. P. Huntington and all the men of that class, who are to us what the nobles were to Europe in feudal days. McKinley is the candidate of the money power—a power against the aggressions of which it is to the patriotic and personal interest of the ordinary American citizen to battle ceaselessly. Who is there that doesn't know this? Look at Hanna. What does that Boss import? Are the people of the United States prepared to give victory to a cause which finds its most adequate representative in Hanna.

Judge the two candidates by the forces and the men who are exerting themselves in their behalf. So judged, to which candicate should the thoughtful American give his ballot?"

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND, of St. Paul, Minnesota, on Saturday came out in a long letter lauding the Republican platform and endorsing its candidates. On Tuesday Bishop Wigger of Newark (N. J) diocese, condemned and deprecated the course of Archbishop Ireland in giving the public a letter on the campaign issues of the day calculated to arouse the passions of men that have lain dormant since the closing days of the war.

With a shake of his head he said: "Archbishop Ireland always has been an extremist. There are some men who cannot see in any situation or set of circumstances any hope for brightness. Danger of the gravest character is always stalking abroad. I am thankful to be able to say that I cannot agree with the sentiments expressed by Archbishop Ireland. In the first place, while I have not studied the political issues of the day thoroughly, I know enough of them to believe that one is predominant, and that is the money question. I don't know, but I believe that, whether gold or silver wins, the members of the defeated party will accept the result with grace. The citizens of this great country are too conservative, they have too much sense, to do anything but return to their different occupations and work with might and main for the fairest, richest and most prosperous country that God has given his children.

"According to Archbishop Ireland, the Chicago platform is a declaration of secession, and the Chicago nominees are leaders in a movement to disrupt this glorious union. That is absolutely not true. I dare say and I believe that the men who framed the Chicago platform and the men fighting for victory under its standard are as good men as pure patriots as Archbishop Ireland. I am convinced of the absolute honesty and sincerity of the Democratic leaders, and I am convinced that no one thought of secession or rebellion. As honest men they are entitled to battle for the principles they believe will bring prosperity to their country, and therefore to their countrymen, and neither Archbishop Ireland or any other man has a right to impute to them motives of secession and rebellion. I tell you secession is dead in this country.

Rebellion will nevermore lift its head in America. Both had their day. Both were fought and conquered by the spilling of some of the bravest blood the world had ever seen. Never again will the people of this grand Republic, whether they reside North, South, East or West, tolerate for one moment thoughts of disloyalty and when Archbishop Ireland suggests such a thing he does incalculable injury to those who I am sure he wants to befriend. His talk of rebellion is bound to bear fruit, and it will not be a fruit to gather of which will give either pleasure or profit to the citizens of this country. In every community, large or small, there are certain spirits who can be led into any excess by the rash words of any man whose position is high.

"This is why I deprecate the words of Archbishop Ireland. He is an ardent Republican, working for the cause of his party, but I believe he has gone further—yes, a great deal further—than the circumstances warrant or than become a Christian gentleman. His position is a dignified one, it is an exalted one, and his words, uttered, perhaps, in a thoughtless moment, and surely without warrant, may possibly lead some poor soul to deeds that the whole country will shudder at. Not secession, not rebellion—those are dead, but the misguided spirits, inflamed by words uttered by lips which they have looked up to, are incapable of hurting, not the country, but themselves.

"As for the rest of Archbishop Ireland's letter, I don't want to discuss it. As I said before, he is an extremist and an alarmist, and his whole letter is on these lines, I, in my capacity as a citizen of the glorious American Republic, have faith in its stability and future. I condemn the utterances of men, no matter what their station, calculated to endanger these, and Archbishop Ireland has sowed a harvest that he may dread to see reaped."

FROM the London Times and Echo, July 19th 1896.

"If the single gold standard can be forced upon South America and Asia as it has been since 1873 forced on North America and Europe, gold must inevitably appreciate to at least four times its value; or to put it otherwise, commodities to one-fourth of the present price and labor, all the world over, be crucified as it was never crucified before—in days of mediæval serfdom or even chattel slavery. Such is the contest. If the money lords can force gold monometalism upon the whole world, they will succeed in establishing the most gigantic moneyed aristocracy among the rich, and the worst system among the "masses" that has ever cursed the hapless sons of men."

DEPUTY SECRETARY BARNETT has notified the county commissioners through the state that owing to the cantests over nominations in the Dauphin county court and the possibility of changes in electoral tickets the state department will not be able to furnish the official ballot before next Tuesday, the last day under the law for certifying nominations. The department has mailed to the commissioners in every county to aid them in preparing the official ballot a form which has been set up with the electoral tickets on file. Major Barnett says there may be possibly one or two less than ten, but there cannot be any more. If there is no change in the electoral ticket the minimum number of columns on the ballot will be eleven.

THE Republicans have made two polls of Ohio and each time discovered that the state was likely to go for Bryan. They now propose making a third poll with the hope that the result will make a better showing for McKinley and Mark Hanna in their own state.

Washington Letter.

Washington, October 10th, 1896.—Chairman Faulkner and all the other officials at Democratic headquarters in Washington, have a we're-bound-to win expression on their faces. They have not lacked confidence from the beginning, but they have received information this week which they think makes the election of Bryan an absolute certainty. They deem it best not to make public the exact nature of this information at this time.

Mr Lawrence Gardner, secretary of the Democratic Congressional Campaign committe, returned this week from the convention of the National Association of Democratic clubs, of which he is also secretary. He says the convention was the most largely attended and most thoroughly enthusiastic of any convention of the kind ever held, and despite the hard times and the discrimination of the railroads there was a larger attendance than was expected. Speaking of what he learned on the trip Mr. Gardner said: "While at St. Louis, and on my way thither and back, consultations were had with delegates from all parts of the country, and while I went to St. Louis already satisfied that Mr Bryan would be elected, I returned with absolute certainty that nothing can be done that will stay the tide that will carry him into the White House. I have refrained, up to the present time, from expressing my opinion for publication, but now, feeling so absolutely confident of the result, state the sincere belief that Bryan's election is assured. But as this is the fight of the people against the money powers of the world, we must be watchful and keep up the fight until the results are declared."

Democrats are wondering whether President Cleveland's return to Washington indicates his taking an active part in the remainder of the campaign. Some say one thing and some another. Meanwhile Secretaries Carlisle and Morton are talking for gold and small fry officials are asked for their resignations for talking for silver.

More that three hundred enthusiastic Democrats went out to Laurel to hear Senator Gorman make his first Bryan and Sewail speech, and they were amply paid for so doing. Senator Gorman's statement of his own position on the financial question was at once modest and forceful. He said: "There are some Democrats who have thought it best to go slow on the question now before the people, but when we submitted our views to the highest court in the land, the national convention, there was nothing left for any Democrat to do but to accept the decision." The senator paid his respects to the bolters in a few vigorous and characteristic words and closed by assuring his hearers that the Maryland voters could not be bought—in his own language: "I think I know the people well enough to say that all the banks, railroads and other corporations will not be able to prevent Maryland from casting her electral vote for Bryan and Sewall."

This week the Democratic Congressional committee issued a pocket campaigne book, giving in a nutshell the attitude of the Democratic party in the present campaign, and specially designed to aid Democrats in arguing for the free coinage of silver. Senator Faulkner says it is one of the most unique, useful and popular campaign books ever issued.

Here are some of the reasons, in the shape of letters received at Democratic headquarters in Washinghton, why the Republicans are getting frightened about Ohio. From Fullerton, the chairman of the silver club writes: "In our backwoods town in the corner of Ohio, where we usually poll nearly two hundred Republican to to ten or twelve Democratic votes, we have organized a silver club which now has more than ninety members. There has been a silver club organized in every township around us," and from Redfield, the secretary of another silver club, writes: "This precinct polled 82 Democratic votes last fall, and we will have over one hundred this fall."

Mr. Sewall's letter of acceptance made public this week, is confirmation which nobody can dispute of the positive assertion made weeks ago in this correspondence, that Mr. Sewall would neither be withdrawn nor withdraw from the ticket upon which he was placed by the Chicago convention.

The Republicans came dangerously near to being thrown into panic this week by the unfavorable views they received from Ohio and other states which they had fancied to be sure for McKinley. They are still quaking in private, but have mustered up courage enough to resume their old game of claiming everything in public, and notice has been served upon their millionaire backers that more money—lots more—must be at once raised and sent into Ohio and other states without which McKinley cannot possibly be elected. M.

A Bicycle Causes Suicide.

New York, Oct. 10.—William Miller, twenty five years old, of No. 174 Fifty-fifth street, Brooklyn, after many disputes with his twenty-three-year-old wife about her riding a bicycle, committed suicide by hanging himself to the kitchen door during her absence.

Mrs. Miller had left him two hours previous, after telling him she could no longer live with him. The Millers were married a few years ago. Their married life from the first was not happy. The climax came about three weeks ago, when the woman bought a bicycle, on which she sported to her own delight, but much to her husband's displeasure. He lost his position with a firm in this city, and as he could not make his weekly installments on his furniture the owners seized it. Mrs. Miller followed it shortly afterwards, going to the home of her mother,

Drove Off a High Bridge.

Lancaster, Pa., October 11.—C. L. Young, a farmer of Manor township, last night lost his way and drove down a steep hill leading to the approach to the place at Reigart's Landing, where a bridge formerly crossed Conestoga Creek, his horse going at a furious rate of speed.

Only the bridge abutments on either side of the stream remain, and from that on the north bank the horse made a leap into the creek, dropping over 20 feet, Young was held underneath the vehicle, but he managed to keep his head above water. For an hour he remained in this perilous situation, when Adam Gerhart heard his cries and rescued him. Young escaped with only an injured l g.

Mashed Her Head.

Pineville, Ky., October 11.—While William Baker and his wife were at work in a cornfield last evening, they quarreled. Baker threw a rock which struck his wife in the head felling her. With other rocks he pounded her head, mashing it almost to a jelly. Then he carried her to their home, where she lived long enough to tell the story. Baker, who is in jail, is thought to be insane.

Shot Dead as He Whistled.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Rocco Maralotta shot and killed William Mattuas, foreman for the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, this morning. Up to a few days ago Maralot a had been employed in the gang directed by Matuas, but his work was not satisfactory and he was discharged. Then he made threats against Matuas' life. Maralotta knew that the foreman had to pass his house every morning on his way to work, and he lay in wait for him this morning, armed with a doubled barrelled breech loading shot-gun.

Matuas came along the street whistling, and as he arrived in front of the house Maralotta pushed the gun through the window, and, taking hasty aim, pulled both triggers. The charge entered Matuas' left side and he fell to the ground dead. The police sent out a genaral alarm and found the murderer hiding in a tenement about a half a mile from the scene of the shooting.

He went quietly to the station, where he frankly admitted that he had shot Matuas, and that he did so because the latter had not treated him fairly while at work.

Cuba Truly Desolate.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 12.—A resident of this city, who escaped from Cuba, received a letter from his sister dated at the American consulate in Matanzas, September 29. She says:

'You cannot imagine the state of affairs in this unhappy country. The Spanish arrest and often murder the people, and nobody is sure in the evening that he will be living in the morning. The island is literally desolate. It is impossible to do any business or earn a dollar, and the people of this once rich country are literally dying of starvation. American citizens arrested are shot down without the semblance of a trial, the murder always being done outside of the cities. The Spaniards start out with the prisoners, claiming that they are to remove them to other cities, but they shoot them down and then claim the prisoners attempted to escape. Cubans are winning nearly every battle and will certainly win their contest for freedom."

ARBITRATION STILL LAGGING.

Differences of Larger Magnitude Than In the Boundary Trouble—Sir Julian Pauncefote Has Made Great Progress While In London the Last Summer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—There is every indication that the administration hopes to be able by the time congress meets again to report a sensible advance in the negotiations concerning the Venezuelan boundary question, though it scarcely can be said that there is an expectation of a final settlement of the dispute by that date. It was understood when the British ambassador went home on leave of absence it was the purpose of the British premier to make use of the opportunity to confer with Sir Julian, and it was presumed that when Lord Salisbury became acquainted with the real sentiment of the people of the United States and the fact that in this matter the administration can count on unanimous support, and that there was little hope of a change in the attitude of the government whatever the outcome of the pending elections, he might be disposed to go further towards meeting Secretary Olney than at first seemed likely.

Since Sir Julian has been in London word has come of several conferences between himself and Lord Salisbury, and it is finally expected that when he returns to Washington he will be charged with authority to offer compromise proposals, which may, in the end, prove to be the basis for a final settlement of the troublesome boundary dispute. It is expected, too, that the Venezuelan boundary commission will have agreed upon its report before congress meets, and the conclusion reached may very properly be used with great weight by Secretary Olney to sustain his position.

As to the other question, relating to the negotiation of a general arbitration treaty it is believed that not so much progress will be made as in the settlement of the boundary question, for the differences disclosed to exist between the two governments appear to be of larger magnitude than the issues involved in the boundary question, which after all are largely matters of fact.

NOW IN THE COURTS.

Protest of New York Silver Democrats Upheld by One Judge.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—In the supreme court of Kings county Judge Clement has decided in favor of the Democratic county committee's protest against the use, upon the official ballot, of the designation "National Democratic" by the gold standard Democrats and Shepard faction of the party. In his opinion Judge Clement says that "the political party name of the National Democratic party is substantially the same as the name Democratic party and infringes upon the right of the use thereof by the political party known as the regular Democratic party.

The matter will at once be taken before the appellate division for further argument. At the board of elections several days age the commissioners refused to put the names of the Shepard party nominees on the ballots under the head of the National Democratic party. A writ of mandamus is applied for to compel the commissioners to do so.

The Suicide From Oil City.

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 14.—It now seems almost certain that the mysterious suicide who ended his life so tragically by jumping over the parapet at Prospect point into the water was A. J. For Your Protection—Catarrh "Cures" or Tonics for Catarrh in liquid form to be taken internally, usually contain either Mercury or Iodide of Potassa, or both, which are injurious if too long taken. Catarrh is a local, not a blood disease, caused by a sudden change to cold or damp weather. It starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat. Cold in the head causes excessive flow of mucus, and if repeatedly neglected, the results of catarrh will follow; severe pain in the head, a roaring sound in the ears, bad breadth, and oftentimes an offensive discharge. The remedy should be quick to allay inflammation and heal the membrane. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowleged cure for these troubles and contains no mercury nor any injurious drug. Price, 50 cents.

—Fred Oast, of Johnstown, was brought to jail one day last week to answer at December sessions to a charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons.

—On Thursday evening of last week a fire at Kane Pa., damaged John Kebler,s business block to the extent of $1,200. Mr. Kebler formerly resided in Ebensburg.

—The residence of Mr. J. W. Buck, at Conemaugh, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday morning. The fire originated by a coal falling from the stove and the upsetof a lamp while trying to extinguish the blaze, caused the destruction of the house.

—On Monday night, the house of Mr. B. G. Williams, in the West ward, was entered by a man, who was evidently bent on robbing the owner. Mr. Williams was awakened by the noise and the intruder made a hasty exit through the kitchen window.

—On Thursday of last week, Sylvester Seymore, of Allegheny township, attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself in the breast with a revolver. The ball struck a rib and followed it thereby preventing a fatal termination of the attempt at self destruction.

—Mrs. David J. Jones, of Westmont, who was so badly injured by a collision between a buggy and a street car, is reported by the attending physician, Dr. J. S. Taylor, to be steadily improving. This will be gratifying news to her many friends. —Johnstown Democrat.

—The overhead bridge being erected at Patton by the Pennsylvania Railroad company is about completed. This bridge will connect McIntyre avenue with the new township road leading to St. Lawrence, which is considered a nearer route by about three miles. The bridge is twenty-two feet high, twenty-two feet wide and about seventy feet in length.

—The Altoona Mirror of Saturday says: "Miss Tillie Wilt, aged seventeen years ran away from her home in Ashville, Cambria county, August 24th, and found employment with a respectable family at Allegheny furnace. Her sister came to this city in search for her yesterday morning, and with the assistance of Constable Stains found the girl and took her home."

—The curfew agitation has invaded the East. It is stated that more than a hundred western cities have adopted the rule that boys and girls under the age of 16 shall be off the streets unless accompanied by grown persons by 9 o'clock at night, and that the order has excellent results. There is now a movement in Trenton, N. J., to adopt the curfew idea. Certainly the evil it is sought to overcome by this rule is a very real one.

—A Norristown special of October 6th says Dr. John S. Schrawder, of Arcola, was to-day convicted in the criminal court of furnishing a false statement to the Norristown Breeze. This is the first case in this county tried under the law of 1893, making it a misdemeanor to furnish false statements to a newspaper. The case was on trial two days and attracted widespread attention. Motion for arrest of judgment was made on the ground of unconstitutionality of the act.

—John and Milton Cunningham, of Clarksburg, Indiana county, have been arrested for non-support. The information is made by their father under the act of 1895. The accused indicate their willingness to provide for their father but object to maintaining their step-mother. The act of assembly referred to compels children, able to do so, to support their parents, when the latter are destitude and unable to support themselves.

—Skyles, Miller & Co., recently shipped 600 bushel of potatoes from Williamsburg to Baltimore. They cost 12½ cents a bushel in Williamsburg and the price obtained in Baltimore was 28 cents. That looks like a good margin for profit. But, unfortunately, the freight charge was just exactly first cost of the potatoes 12½ cents, and the shippers only got a net profit of 3 cents a bushel, or $18 for the whole carload. That was hardly worth the trouble. Hollidaysburg Standard.

—A. W. Buck, assignee of B. P. Anderson, will offer for sale at the residence of B. P. Anderson, in Allegheny township, on Saturday, November 7th, 1896, at 10 o'clock, A. M., that well-known hotel property known as the "Anderson House," at Cresson, two farms in Allegheny township, the coal under three hundred and eighty-eight acres in Allegheny township, and a lot of personal property consisting of farming implements, horses, cows, pigs, etc., lumber, shingles, etc. See ad in another column.

—The Pittsburg Daily News is just about six months old. It is a Republican evening newspaper of eight pages, neatly printed, and served by mail or carrier at one cent a copy, or $3 a year. The Daily News aims to be a paper for the home, and it spares neither labor nor expense to cater to the family circle. It claims to have been phenominally successful in its efforts. It is the only Pittsburg daily with a page devoted entirely to women. If you have not seen it you can get a sample copy of it by mail free of charge.

—On Sunday morning, October 4th, Mrs. John Ramsey, of Brisbin, Clearfield county, committed suicide by hanging, using a piece of miner's lamp wick, and attached it to a transom of a door. Her husband died about ten months ago, and she lived alone, with her son, who worked at Smoke Run, coming down to see her on Saturdays. Saturday, October 3d, however, he missed the train, but came down on Sunday morning on the first train, and proceeding to his home was horrified to find his mother hanging. She was aged 55 years.

—The compulsory school law is not giving satisfaction in may place. The law provides that suit shall be brought against parents and guardians when children have been absent five days during the month without excuse. The truant officer of Allegheny picked up a fourteen-year-old boy and took him before a magistrate when it was found that nothing could be done in such a case unless the parents of the boy made a complaint. The father was willing but the consent of the mother had to be obtained also. An amendment will be asked for to cover all such cases.

—Among the decisions handed down by the supreme court of Pennsylvania at the opening of the October term, at Pittsburg, on Monday, was that of the Commonwealth vs. John Hurd, of Blair county. The decision affirms the judgment of the lower court. The case was brought into the courts of Blair county against John Hurd and James Funk, commissioners, and resulted from the auditors' report of expenditures for 1894, in relation to repairing the court house and jail and the drawing of money from the county funds. The defendant was found guilty, sentenced to pay $50 and costs, and removed from office.

—On Thursday evening of last week, as the train from Cresson, due at Ebensburg, at 5:59, was approaching Kaylor's station it was run into by a coal train and the engine badly wrecked. Fortunately the engineer of the regular train saw the coal train some time before the collision and had checked the speed or the accident might have been much worse. There were thirty-nine passengers on board none of whom were hurt. They were brought to Ebensburg on another train. The accident was due to negligence on the part of the operator at Kaylor's, who should have stopped the coal train until the regular train had passed.

—By a decision of the supreme court, handed down last week, it is decided that a stockholder in a water, gas or electric company, having a contract with a city or borough for the products of his company cannot hold a position on the council of such city or borough. That puts a restriction on many of our people most competent for councilmen, but it is the law now.

—Albert Koontz, of Johnstown, who playfully pointed a gun at his sweetheart, in that place, on September 29th, and while doing so the gun was discharged, was arrested last week, charged with having shot and attempted to kill her. He was given a hearing on Saturday evening and was held for court without bail. The evidence showed that there are considerable grounds for believing that Koontz intended to kill the woman, it being proven that he was told the gun was loaded before he pointed the weapon at her in a manner in which he claims was a joke. Koontz denied that he knew of the loading of the gun.

—One day last week, while threshing at John Hardman, Jr's., Mr. Hardman sent one of his hands to get some oats to feed his horses. On going to the granary he did not see anything to get the oats in but a box containing wheat bran. He took the oats and bran mixed and fed the horses. The bran contained rough on rats, and the result was that one of the horses died from the effects of the poison and the other one is still lingering and suffering from the effects of the same. This should be a warning to persons who have rough on rats sitting around in so careless a manner as it was in this case.—Everett Republican.

—Mr. Fredrick Hauk, Sr., a well-known citizen of Carroll township, died at his home in that township on Wednesday morning of last week from heart failure superceded by paralysis. The deceased was born in Prussia, 65 years ago, and came to this country when 19 years of age. It 1858 he came to Carroll township and settled on the farm where he resided up until the time of his death. He is survived by his wife, two sons, J. J. Hauk, of Carrolltown, and Frederick Hauk, Jr., of Carroll township, and two daughters, Mary and Kate at home. His remains were interred in St. Benedict's cemetery at Carrolltown on Saturday afternoon.

—Mr. Timothy Brophy, a well-known and respected citizen of Altoona, died at his home in that city on Wednesday morning from a complication of diseases, in the 70th year of his age. Mr. Brophy was at one time a resident of Ebensburg, and was well known to the older people of the town, many of our middle aged people having attended his private school when he taught in the old academy which stood on the south-west corner of the court house square. He was born in Kingston, Canada, December 4th, 1827, and when a child his parents removed to Pittsburg. After attaining manhood he came to Ebensburg, where remained for several years teaching school. While in Ebensburg he was married to Miss Catharine Kane. He afterwards removed to Blairsville, Pa., and in 1865 removed to Altoona where he resided until the time of his death. His wife died in 1884. He is survived by four children all grown up. His remains will be taken to Loretto for interment.

—Four men, Martin Nolan and Oliver Laly, bricklayers, and George Wortham and Joseph Nelson, hod carriers, were thrown twenty-five feet to the ground by the breaking of a scaffold at Hart's building on Eighth avenue and Nineteenth street, Altoona, on Thursday afternoon. The injured men are employes of Contractor Flinn, who is doing the brick and stone work on the building. Nolan and Lacy were laying the brick from the scaffold, which had about 1,000 bricks stored on it, beside some mortar. When the three hod carriers brought up additional loads, the weight was too much for the structure, which simply collapsed. The four men were dropped to the ground and were buried under the masses of bricks, mortar and timbers. Wortham, in his descent, fell astride a timber, and suffered horribly painful injuries. The other man escaped by catching to a board as the scaffold fell. All are badly hurt and it will be several days before the full extent of their injuries will be accurately determined.

Detective at Work.

A Philadelphia firm sent a detective to Indiana last week to investigate some irregularities of a certain traveling agent engaged by them. It seems that dress goods etc. were continually missing and suspicion pointed toward the smart commercial agent who had a girl in Indiana, to whom he was paying some attention. The young lady lives across the Two Lick but before leaving town for her home she took the dress goods to a down town dressmaker and ordered a dress made. When an elderly man, with a straw hat, appeared and asked for the dress, the dressmaker replied it was not finished, "Well, the old man said, I want to get another like it just give me a piece of the goods," and when the goods was handed him he replied "that's the stuffy,," and authorized the lady to hold that dress until further orders. Of course no blame is attached to the young lady who supposed the goods were honestly secured but the young man will likely get another job, cheat some other firm and fool some other girl.—Indiana Democrat.

Grabbed the Dollars.

One of the most daring robberies ever heard of in this locality was committed on the Point, Saturday, in the presence of over 1,000 people. But it was only owing to the presence of so many people that the culprit got away.

Shortly after 7 o'clock a young man apparently about 24 years of age and wearing a dark suit and black hat with light moustache edged his way through the large crowd and took position beside the stand on which the ticket seller for the side show was at work. Dollars galore lay on the stand in front of the crowd, while halves, quarters, dimes and nickles were stacked up alongside.

Quick as a flash the young man raised both hands and before anyone could stop him he had grabbed a double handful of the dollars and was off in the crowd. Everythidg was done so quickly that the crowd was almost struck dumb with amazement.

In a few minutes a search was being instituted for the thief but he evidently did not run far and probably stopped in the centre of the crowd after being lost to view.

It is thought that the young man secured about $30. The ticket seller suffers the loss.—Johnstown Democrat.

State Firemen at Johnstown.

The annual parade of the volunteer firemen in attendance at the state convention in Johnstown, was held on Thursday. The parade was over two miles long, and took over one hour to pass a given point. Over 100 companies took part together with twenty-six bands, many companies being represented by from 50 to 80 members. The Johnstown department of fourteen companies turned out 1,000 strong. The parade covered a distance of eight miles and was brought to a close with a grand review by the state officers, the members of the Executive Board and the local executive committee. The prize for being the best uniformed company, and the prize for the largest company in line was taken by the Junior Fire company, No. 2, of Reading, and that for the finest hook and ladder truck was taken by the Rescue Hook and Ladder company, of Butler.

Both Knocked Out.

Harrisburg, October 13.—This afternoon Judge Simonton handed down an opinion declaring invalid the certificates of nomination of Josiah D. Hicks and Francis J. Kooser, who objected to each other's certificate in the Twentieth congressional district. It will be recalled that Hicks was nominated by the participation of State Treasurer Haywood as an additional conferee.

The court decides that Kooser was nominated by a minority of the conference, and therefore his certificate is invalid, and that in the case of Hicks the conferees had no authority to delegate their powers as conferees to an additional conferee. Both have filed nomination papers.

"There is no principle of law nor any rule or custom in the Republican party which would justify us in holding that a nomination in any view which could be taken of the facts in this case could be made by a minority of the legal conferees."

The court holds that the introduction of of Benjamin Haywood into the conference as a member, with the power to cast four votes, was illegal and in violation of the rules and customs of the Republican party in the congressional district. The court says: By the rules and usages of the party, when there is a candidate nominated at a county primary for any district office, he has the right to select the conferees from that county and the number is fixed at three for each county. There is no rule or accepted custom which provides for the appointment of conferees in any other way for increasing the number of conferees, either by a vote of the conference or otherwise."

This decision will make a free for all fight among the Republicans with no candidate for congress in the Republican column. Messrs. Hicks, of Blair; Thropp, of Bedford, and Koosier of Somerset, have each filed nomination papers, and their respective names will be on the ballot, but neither of them in the Republican column. It looks very much as if the next congressman from this district might be a Democrat, and his name R. C. McNamara, from Bedford.

Judge White Censured.

The supreme court on Monday handed down an opinion dismissing a mandamus on Judge Harry White, of Indiana county. Fleming Park, cashier of the West Philadelphia bank, had a suit pending against Judge White, and asked him to certify it to the Cambria county court for trial at Ebensburg. This he promised to do, but did not, and finally, it is stated, refused to grant the request.

After the mandamus proceedings had been instituted the transfer to Cambria county was made, and because of this the supreme court dismissed the rule, but put the costs on the plaintiff. The opinion says:

"It was the duty of the respondent to certify this to Judge A. V. Barker. This duty was mandatory, and required no exercise of deliberation. There was nothing to excuse the delay."

The case which has got Judge White before the supreme court is an interesting one. Several years ago Thomas White, his son, went into business in Chicago with a young man named Camp, also of Indiana county. The judge indorsed for them to the amount of $3,000. The paper was negotiated through the West Philadelphia bank, which several months ago asked the judge to settle. He refused.

—On Monday afternoon Charles Fleck, foreman of the Pennsylvania railroad roundhouse at Tyrone, was perhaps fatally injured by a squeeze. Fleck jumped on a car that was passing up through the yard to the shop. In jumping off the car he was caught between the shop door and the car and terribly squeezed. He was badly injured internally and will probably die.

BRYAN IN MICHIGAN.

He Spoke at Iron Mountain This Afternoon.

GIVEN AN INK BOTTLE AND INK

By Laboring Men of Duluth to Sign a Silver Bill—Addressed a Big Crowd of Them There—Also Talked to Ladies. What He Said to the Laboring Men.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Oct. 14.—W. J Bryan arrived here early this afternoon. He spoke to an immense gathering.

DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 14.—William Jennings Bryan made two speeches here last night. The day's campaigning tour had covered the route from Minneapolis to Duluth, and at every station of worthy size along the line Mr. Bryan spoke to goodly crowds.

Upon his arrival in this city he was met by a reception committee, and with Mrs. Bryan, was escorted to the St. Louis hotel for dinner. He was then driven to the Lyceum theater, where he addressed an enthusiastic meeting of women. Thence he proceeded to the car barn, which was packed to the utmost with the laboring men of Duluth.

Here Mr. Bryan was presented with the last utensil necessary for the signing of a silver bill when it should reach him, providing he should be elected, an elegant silver ink bottle, filled with the fluid necessary for the purpose.

Charles A. Towne was chairman of both meetings, and at each of them he presented the nominee in a neat little speech.

At the meeting in the car barn Mr. Bryan made a great plea for support for Charles A. Towne, the silver Republican, who is running for congress on the Democratic ticket. Then he said:

It is useless to have a president who will sign a bill, unless you have a congress and senate which will afford him an opportunity to sign a bill, and in this campaign, while we expect not a bare majority, but an overwhelming victory, we must always remember that it is possible that congress may turn upon the vote of a single member and that member whose vote turns the vote in congress may be elected by a single vote in his district, and I beg you to remember that the responsibilities that rest upon you in an hour like this and leave no effort undone to give a majority in the house and to give a majority in the senate, as well as to elect a president in favor of the free coinage of silver without waiting the aid or consent of any other nation.

A voice—You won't vote it, will you?

Mr. Bryan—I will not, but I want you to have two-thirds, if possible, in both houses, so that if any changes should come to me and I would veto it, I want you to have enough votes to pass it over my head. But, my friends, you need not have any fear about my vetoing any measure which is in harmony with the platform on which I stand. I have been taught to believe that platforms guides us those elected, not merely a means by which one may be elected, and you may rest assured that what is in that platform I believe in, and that no power on earth will prevent me carrying that platform out so far as my ability may go. I desire to see this organized labor in this city for having completed the equipment, so that I am now prepared to sign that bill whenever it reaches me, without depending on anybody else for pen or inkstand or ink. The golden pen and the silver holder and the ink presented tonight shall be preserved, and if by the suffrages of my countrymen I am placed in that highest office withing the gift of the people of this world, these things shall be used for the purpose for which they were intended, and I shall be glad that when the deed is done I will be indebted, not to financiers, not to trusts, not to corporations, not to syndicates, but to the laboring men for the equipment.

My friends, I glad to have the support of laboring men and I will tell you why. Because, if I am elected by their votes, all they will ask of me is to do my duty to my country and protect every citizen in the enjoyment of equal rights and give special privileges to no man. If I were elected with the aid of those great syndicates and trusts and corporations, when they had elected me they would expect me to employ all my time in aiding them to get back out of the people more than they had contributed to elect me president.

I thank the glee club for singing that song, which I think should be made our battle hymn. My friends, in this campaign we are fighting in the defense of our homes and our firesides, and when the coal trust attempts to send its representatives to sit by your firesides and collect tribute from you remember that song, "Home, Home, Sweet Home," and let your ballot mean that the trusts must be destroyed and that the people shall be freed from their unlawful exactions. "Home, Sweet Home," is the song that you should remember when you go to cast your votes in November, because, my friends, if you do not use the ballot to protect that home and that family of yours, remember that there is no one in this country who will use his ballot to do what you neglect to do for those you love, for those who are the objects of your anxious care cannot look to you to defend them from all those influences which seek to make home less happy and the family less prosperous. If they cannot look to you for defense, then, my friends, to whom can they look? They say that "Home, Sweet Home," should be our battle hymn, because we are trying to protect each home in this country from injury at the hands of any one, and then, in the broader sense, we are trying to protect this home, our country, from the domination of foreign financial influence.

The money question is paramount in this campaign. Other questions can be settled at any time. The money question must be settled now. Whenever a great party does as the Republican party has done, proposes to surrender the right to legislate on a question of domestic concern, just so long as that question is before the people, no other question can approach it in importance. The Republican party does not say we can abandon the gold standard when we get tired of it. The Republican platform admits that the people are tired of it now, because that platform pledges the Republican party to substitute the double standard.

The Republican party, however, after admitting that the double standard is better than the gold standard, tells you that you must submit to a gold standard until relief comes from abroad. How long must it be? They say no limit. Until is a long word. Until may mean forever, my friends, and I believe that the man who wrote that platform and put in the word until never expected the leading nations to come to our relief, but expected that forever we should have the gold standard in our midst.

Will Marry a Marquis.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Miss Mary Gwendolin Caldwell, founder of the Divinity college of the Catholic university, in a letter to a friend here, announces that she will be married in Dresden, Oct. 19, to the Marquis des Meninville. Bishop Spalding of the Peoria diocese, who is administrator of the Caldwell estate, will perform the ceremony. The first building of the Catholic university was erected as a result of a donation of $300,000 from Miss Caldwell.

Killed In a Peculiar Way.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—Mrs. John Harris, colored, fainted in the elevator of the Ruggery building, and fell on the floor of the elevator as it was ascending. Her arm, extending through the entrance of the elevator, was caught by a slightly projecting ledge of the floor and her hand was so moved as to be caught by a similar ledge at the next floor and killed her.

The Castles Allowed Bail.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—At Marlborough Street police court Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Castle of San Francisco, who were arrested at the Hotel Cecil on Tuesday last, charged with stealing a quantity of furs, etc., from various dealers in this city, were arraigned and after a short hearing were again remanded for a week, bail being allowed in the sum of $150,000.

An Old Soldier's Suicide.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Department clerks on their way to office from Woodside, Md., about ten miles from town discovered the dead body of Captain Simon Kane, a former member of the Seventeenth Wisconsin Volunteers, suspended from a limb of a tree that had been blown over in the recent storm. It is believed he suicided.

SECRETARY MORTON'S OPINION.

He Says Neither Party Has a Cinch on the Result.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Secretary Morton has returned to Washington and resumed his official duties after an extended vacation in the west. He announced that he would take no part in the elections, but added that if he were to vote he would cast his ballot for Palmer and Buckner, whose platform he regarded as satisfactory. His reason for not voting, he said, is the distance of his Nebraska home from Washington and the lack of necessity for his vote, which he said he would cast if it were likely to make any essential difference. The secretary was not inclined to talk politics and said he did not care to discuss the situation and outlook.

"I personally hope for McKinley and Bryan," he said, "but I don't think any one of the candidates can rest on their oars with assurances. The Republican party is making a great mistake now in bragging of strength and not doing more work. There is no certainty until the election is an assured fact, and less noise and more work in convincing voters of the right principles and the right creed for them to support is needed. This failure to appreciate the strength of the opposition was evident when the election note was first sounded. I belong to a political party which belittled the extent of the free silver craze in its own ranks. This is an unfortunate and mistaken idea, and the sooner the party managers put forth all their efforts to bring out all the votes possible the better it will be."

BRONSTON IS FIGHTING MAD.

He and Carroll Likely to Duel Over Political Differences.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 14.—It is stated here today, on what seems to be reliable information, that State Senator Charles J Bronston and ex-chairman of the Democratic state central committees, John D Carroll are on the verge of a duel. The trouble grew out of the late Frankfort convention, when Carroll caused Bronston's defeat by throwing his strength to Evan E Settle of Owen county. It seems that Bronston had counted on Carroll to nominate him, and was mad when his opponent was benefitted by the withdrawal of the Henry county man.

The report says that Bronston cursed Carroll roundly and that Carroll coolly told him to think over the matter and apologize for his remarks. Bronston proposed to settle them in a personal encounter, but Carroll refused and told him that he should have time in which to take back his objectionable language.

Letters have passed between them, but it is stated by those close to Bronston that he does not intend to retract what he said, and they see no way out of the trouble, except in accordance with the code adopted in settling such grievances. Both are brave men, and if the field is resorted to as the only way of settling the matter, it is believed each will face his foe gamely.

SLICK U. S. CONSUL SMITH.

Resigns, He Says, For Politics' Sake. Olney Tells the Reason.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Some days ago Henry Clay Smith of Alabama sent a letter, which he made public, to President Cleveland, resigning as United States consul at Santos, Brazil, giving as a reason that he wanted to return to Alabama to work for Bryan and Sewall.

Secretary Olney, in his letter accepting the resignation, says:

"It is not deemed a violent assumption that your resignation is tendered in well-grounded anticipation of the probable action of the president upon numerous charges of personal and official misconduct, some of which have been on file in this department for a considerable period, all of which have been called to your attention, and none of which have you either refuted or satisfactorily explained.

"As, however, the acceptance of your resignation by relieving the public service of the injurious consequences of your connection with it answers practically all the purposes that could be accomplished by your dismissal, I am directed by the president to notify you that your resignation is accepted."

BRYAN'S ELECTION ASSURED.

Chairman Jones Says He Is Certain of 279 Electoral Votes.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee has given out a statement, characterizing as absurd the figures showing the probable result of the election as given out by Senator Quay. Chairman Jones states that in all the states classed by Senator Quay as doubtful complete and harmonious fusion between the Democrats, Populists and silver Republicans exists, rendering them certain for Bryan.

For the same reason he classes as doubtful the states of Iowa, Ohio and Wisconsin, and claims for Bryan the electoral votes of Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota and West Virginia, all of which were claimed for McKinley by Mr. Quay.

The table given out by Mr. Jones gives 81 votes as certain for McKinley, 279 for Bryan and 87 as doubtful.

CHANGE THE PARTY'S NAME

Indiana Election Board Decides Against Gold Standard Democrats.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 14.—The state board of elections has decided that the ticket of the National Democrats should be called the Gold Standard ticket. The board had previously notified Mr. S. O. Pickens, the chairman of the state central committee of the National Democrats that the ticket could not go on the ballot under the name of National Democratic, and had requested him to send in another name.

This Mr. Pickens declined to do, stating that the name had been advisedly chosen and that there was nothing in the law to forbid its use. In his formal reply to the board's request, Mr. Pickens declared that the party which he represented was the only National Democratic, and that the name was descriptive, as well as legal.

TO HEED BRYAN'S REQUEST.

Democratic Clubmen Asked to Be at the Polls All Day.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The National Association of Democratic clubs has issued an appeal to all club members to do all within their power to bring out a full Democratic vote on election day. The members are urged to heed the request of Mr. Bryan that the club members remain at the polls all of election day, that each appoint himself a missionary and that, as far as able, each furnish a conveyance to bring to the polls Democrats who otherwise would not vote.

The association's appeal says success depends in a great degree upon club organization and urges that each member do duty as a willing volunteer.

PENNSYLVANIA VISITORS.

Hon. George V. Lawrence Introduced Them to Major McKinley.

CANTON, O., Oct. 13.—The first delegations of the week came in one special train of 11 coaches, which reached here shortly before 1 o'clock. The party came from Roscoe and the Monongahela valley of Pennsylvania, and was made up of citizens representing the various interests of that locality. They were very enthusiastic and organized with two marching clubs, mostly uniformed.

Several bands and a colored glee club furnished the music. Owing to rain the delegation was taken to the Tabernacle, where Major McKinley responded to the introductory address of the venerable George V. Lawrence, ex-member of congress and an octogenarian.

A POPULIST APPEAL.

Butler's Committee Issues One to the Party.

THOSE WHO ARE FIGHTING FUSION

Petitioned to Wheel Into Line—Asked to Not Listen to the Talk of Gold Democrats and Republicans—A Conference Held In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—After a meeting of the executive committee of the People's party, held at the Sherman house, at which reports from members present, and especially from H. W. Reed of Georgia, who spent several days with Thomas E. Watson, were heard, the committee issued a manifesto in which they say:

Your national committee indulged the hope that the patriotic action of the People's party in national convention in subordinating the interests of party to the success of the vital issues involved in this campaign would be met by equally unselfish devotion to a common interest on the part of the Democratic party, and that all the friends of silver could present a solid front against the minions of greed by supporting our ticket, the truly co-operative ticket, Bryan and Watson. But this hope being disappointed there were but two courses left, one of which must be adopted.

First, to run a straight Bryan and Watson electoral ticket in every state, which, on account of the failure of the Democratic party to support this ticket, would have availed the same result in this campaign that would have followed the nomination of a straight Populist ticket at St. Louis, namely, the election of McKinley and the triumph of the gold standard.

The brave enlightened voters who constitute the rank and file of the People's party are incapable of such base betrayal of their country as would result from a division in the ranks of those opposing their machinations of the confederated money power of the two continents against the homes and liberties of the American people, and would repudiate any action on the part of their leaders opposed to united effort at this time, as they repudiated the old parties for treachery to their interests.

The other course left open to your committee that was consistent with the action of the convention in nominating Mr. Bryan was to do everything in its power to unite the voters of the country against McKinley and to overcome the obstacles and embarrassments which, if the Democratic party had put the cause first and party second, we would not have encountered.

This could be accomplished only by arranging for a division of the electoral vote in every state possible, securing so many electors for Bryan and Watson and conceding so many to Bryan and Sewall.

Following this line of policy, your committee has arranged electoral tickets in three-fourths of the states and will do all in its power to make the same arrangement in all of the states. By perfecting this arrangement and every sincere opponent of the gold standard giving their loyal support to these joint electoral tickets the People's party will not only secure in the electoral college for Bryan and Watson several times as many votes as we could have secured by making a straight fight, but we will secure the defeat of McKinley and the gold standard, which should now be the greatest desire of every citizen who believes in the principles of true Democracy as taught by Jefferson and of true Republicanism as represented by Abraham Lincoln.

By this arrangement we can unite a large majority of the voters of America on our joint electoral tickets; therefore the only hope of the money power and trusts is to divide and conquer. The Republican managers and their gold Democratic allies realize this, and are putting forth every effort to accomplish this end. They have had their emissaries on hand everywhere trying to prevent joint electoral tickets from being arranged. Failing in this, they try to find Populists and silver Democrats who can be induced, on one pretext or another, to rebel against the joint electoral tickets.

The danger lies in the possibility of a certain portion of the rank and file of the People's party being misled by so-called leaders, who, for reasons best known to themselves, or for want of reason, are advising voters to rebel against the joint electoral tickets and put up separate electoral tickets, or to withhold their support from the joint electoral tickets.

Some of the Democrats of the revenue stripe, who are not yet weaned from the fleshpots of Egypt but are sticklers for regularity, and are nominally supporting Mr. Bryan while secretly and in every underhanded way are trying to accomplish his defeat, are advising against the joint electoral tickets, and failing in this, they advise Democrats to scratch People's party electors, and already a few so-called Populist leaders are advising the rank and file of our party to strike back by refusing to support the Democratic electors on the joint electoral tickets.

This is a trap set by the gold bugs, who are rejoicing that a few honest men have fallen into it. These reports today are the only ones that buoy up the hopes of the Republican managers, and the Democrats and Populists who are thus engaged are doing just what the gold men most desire.

Therefore we appeal to every Populist who may have been misled by such mistaken or false pleas for misguided loyalty to the People's party into refusing support to such joint electoral tickets to stop and consider the results of such conduct and refuse to be influenced by either misguided or corrupt men.

The members of the committee admitted after the meeting that this statement is in the nature of a rebuke to Thomas Watson, who has been calling on all Populists to keep in the middle of the road, without paying attention to either of the other parties.

Senator Marion Butler said that Mr. Watson would remain on the ticket and that his removal had not been discussed.

NO NEWS OF THE DAUNTLESS.

Government Officials Much Worried Over the Alleged Filibusterer.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 14.—Government officials here are worried over the whereabouts of the tug Dauntless, and it is intensified by a rumor from Washington that the officials there are displeased over the disappearance of the tug. The steamer Commodore asked permission to go out, and the treasury department was asked in regard to it, but no reply has been received.

The Three Friends and the Commodore will be looked after sharply now. Mr. Bisbee, the owner of the Dauntless, says the tug is in a legitimate business off Brunswick, and that she is not in any filibustering expedition.

The Spanish consul is very active, and several additional Spanish detectives are here. The consul professes to be satisfied with the action of the government officials here, saying that they could not do anything more than they did. No news has been received from the Dauntless.

SENATOR BUTLER INTERFERES.

He Decides Against the Bolting Populists In West Virginia.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—N W Fitzgerald, the Populist nominee for governor of West Virginia, has been in consultation with Senator Butler over the long distance telephone concerning the attitude of the officers of the Populist state committee of West Virginia on the question of fusion, and he says that the senator assured him he would not recognize the right of the officers to negative the wishes of the majority of the committee, but that on the other hand he would recognize the right of the committee to act independent of its officers.

It is believed at Populist headquarters here that this decision on the part of Senator Butler will promote fusion between the Democrats and Populists in West Virginia.

2,000 Workmen Benefited.

WALTHAM, Mass., Oct. 14.—The Waltham Watch company has posted a notice announcing that on and after Friday next the factory will run 54 hours per week instead of on half time. Two thousand hands are benefited.

REVIEWED BY THE PRESIDENT.

The Union Veteran Legion Paraded In Washington This Afternoon.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The Union Veteran Legion began its eleventh annual encampment in this city today. This morning a business meeting was held and in the afternoon a monster parade, reviewed by President Cleveland, will take place. Among the features of the encampment will be an excursion to Mt Vernon and an oyster roast at Marshall hall.

Quite a contest has developed over the election of national officers. There are three candidates to succeed National Commander George C. James of Cincinnati; Thomas J. McGinley of Philadelphia, J. J. Calahan of Buffalo and John T. Donahue of Wilmington, Del.

THE U. S. SUPREME COURT.

A Motion Made to Dismiss the Long Pension Case.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—In the United States supreme court 30 or 40 motions were submitted for the advancement of cases on the docket and for writs of certiorari and ten cases were dismissed.

The solicitor general moved to dismiss the case of Judge Long of Michigan vs. William Lochren, late commissioner of pensions, on the ground that the cause has abated by reason of Commissioner Lochren's resignation and the retirement from office. This was the test case which has been pending before various courts here several years, in which Judge Long sought to have his $50 pension restored to a $72 rating.

MORE CALLERS AT CANTON.

Delegations There From Sandusky, O., and the Lehigh Valley, Pa.

CANTON, O., Oct. 14.—Shouting Republicans from Sandusky county, O., arrived in Canton from two directions, the first detachment of several carloads coming in over the Cleveland, Canton and Southern railroad and the other coming over the Interurban line via. Massillon. Clyde, Fremont, Bellevue and Green Springs were represented in the party of 800 or 1,000. Their demonstration was held in the tabernacle, where Thomas Dewey delivered the introduction, to which Major McKinley responded. Later the visitors called at the McKinley house and presented Mrs. McKinley with a box of magnificent flowers.

A special train of six coaches arrived, bearing miners, mechanics and other citizens of the Lehigh valley of Pennsylvania. The inclement weather of yesterday still continues, and the visitors were taken to the tabernacle, where Major McKinley went to receive their greetings. They gave him a most enthusiastic reception and applauded his address to the echo. The visitors were introduced by ex-Congressman Charles N Brumm.

GREATLY ADMIRES BRYAN.

Talbot Says He Is a Republican—Has Not Bolted His Partner.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 13.—A. R. Talbot, law partner of William J. Bryan, has given out the following signed statement:

"I see that it is stated in the press reports that I have 'bolted' Mr. Bryan, my law partner, now candidate for president on the Democratic ticket. I have always been, and am now, a Republican, but no man has a greater admiration or higher regard for Mr. Bryan than I have. His honesty, integrity and patriotism cannot be questioned. I have not 'bolted' Mr. Bryan and any statement to that effect is untrue.

(Signed) "A. R. TALBOT."

MAY GIVE WATSON RECOGNITION.

Likely to Be Put on Ticket In Colorado and Kansas.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Senator Butler, chairman of the Populist national committee is here to attend the conference of Populist committeemen today. This meeting is expected to be an important one. It probably will deal with the question of fusion between Democrats and Populists on the electoral ticket.

There has been some criticism in certain quarters of the course of the Populist committee in the matter of fusion, especially in the states of Colorado and Kansas, in which states Mr. Watson receives no recognition. There may be an effort to secure a change in these states, so as to give Watson representation.

Two Fights On Long Island.

MASPETH, L. I., Oct. 13.—The Empire Athletic club held its second boxing tournament of the season last night. The first event was a 10-round go at catch weights between Dick O'Brien of Boston and Dick Moore of St. Paul. Moore was knocked out in the fifth round. The second was a 24-round contest at 148 pounds between the colored boxers, Joe Walcott of Boston and "Scaldy Bill" Quinn of Pennsylvania. Walcott won in the seventeenth round.

Dan Lynch, on behalf of Sharkey, has accepted the proposition and awaits word from Corbett.

Silver Coined During September.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—A statement prepared by the bureau of mint shows that during the month of September, 1896, the mints of the United States coined from silver bullion on hand, purchased under the act of July 14, 1890 2,700,100 standard silver dollars, containing 2,068,358 ounces of pure silver, the cost of which was $1,662,671, giving a seigniorage or profit of $637,428 to the government, which sum has been deposited in the treasury.

A Big Welcome to Reed.

BUFFALO, Oct. 14.—Great enthusiasm prevailed here last night when Thomas B. Reed of Maine and Frank S. Black of Troy addressed the voters at Music hall. Lowering clouds and dismal weather did not discourage the voters, who made a demonstration such as Buffalo has not seen in years. Preceding the speech-making there was a parade of Republican clubs in which probably 10,000 men took part.

Wanamaker at the Meeting.

CARLISLE, Pa., Oct. 14.—The thirty-second convention of the Pennsylvania Sunday School association is in session here. Many delegates were present. Ex-Postmaster General Wanamaker, president of the association, came into the convention and made a brief speech. President Reed of Dickinson college also spoke.

It is learned that Clemens took only about $1,000 and has sent word he will return. He was suffering mentally from business troubles. President George W. STARVED NINE DAYS.

Rescued Sailors' Horrible Tale at Philadelphia.

HAD TO ABANDON THEIR SHIP.

Drifted About In Open Boats Without Food and Water, Until Help Came. Had to Be Dragged on Board, Owing to Weakness.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—The British steamer Evelyn, Captain Horner, from Huelva, Spain, has anchored in the Delaware river, having on board the almost lifeless bodies of nine seamen, the crew of the Norwegian bark Lovise, who were picked up at sea, after being adrift without food or water for nine day.

Their condition, when rescued, was a most pitiable one, and so faint had they become that it was necessary to tie lines to them and haul their attenuated and trembling forms on board the steamship. The particulars of the terrible suffering of the men are meager, as they are still too weak to go into details.

The Lovise, in command of Captain Anderson, left Mobile Aug. 17 for Rosario, with a full cargo of lumber. She experienced the September hurricanes and was badly disabled. Her condition became so bad that all hands had to leave her in two small boats, and until the Evelyn hove in sight they had not seen a vessel for nine days. They could not have lasted another night such was their suffering. Under treatment received since on board the Evelyn the unfortunate men are recovering, but their condition is still precarious.

Their struggle was a desperate one. Days of anxiety and suffering soon told on the unfortunate men, three of whom lost their minds. They raved, and finally sank in absolute exhaustion. When the Evelyn hove in sight these poor fellows lay helpless in the bottom of the boat. They were too weak to realize that their rescue had been effected.

FUNERAL OF DU MAURIER.

Artists and Authors Joined the Stricken Family at the Church.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Hampstead church was crowded with friends and relatives at the funeral of the late George Du Maurier, the artist-author, who died on Thursday last and whose remains were cremated at Woking on Saturday. A large crowd was present of the artistic and literary men and others, including the entire staff of Punch, Burnard, Lucy, Furness, Sir Walter Besant, Bancroft, Poynter, Alfred Gilbert, Henry James, Prof. Lankester and many others.

The mourners were headed by the widow, sons and daughters of the deceased.

Canon Ainger officiated. The gold casket was smothered in flowers, and after the funeral ceremonies was interred in the churchyard under a yew tree.

The floral wreaths included several from actresses who have played the part of Trilby.

THE WEST INDIAN HURRICANE.

Property Loss Great on the Jersey Coast. Half Dozen Lives Lost.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—The West Indian hurricane, which carried death and destruction before it and has devastated the New Jersey coast during the past 48 hours, has finally spent its force. Some half dozen lives have been lost and more than $150,000 worth of property destroyed.

The greatest damage was done at Atlantic City, Angelsea, Sea Isle City and Holly Beach. The railroad companies will be the heaviest losers in Atlantic City, the damage to their roadbeds alone amounting to over $20,000.

At Sea Isle City hardly any property along the ocean front escaped damage. The Hotel Brunswick was badly wrecked by the heavy breakers.
